Giulietta's Ristorante Opens in Lawrenceburg, Indiana, Bringing Old-World Italian Tradition to the Table

A century-long family story, rooted in Verona and carried to America, finds its home in a restored 1884 Italianate building

LAWRENCEBURG, IN -- Giulietta's Ristorante is now open, offering guests an Italian dining experience drawn from family heritage, decades of culinary craft, and a love story that began in Verona more than a century ago.

The restaurant takes its name and spirit from Adelgise Crivellini, born in 1892 in Italy's Marche region, whose family later settled in Verona. There, she met Gioacchino "Joe" Sbarbati, and the two eventually immigrated to America in 1915, settling in Norwood, Ohio. Adelgise brought with her a mattarello, a wooden rolling pin she used to make the handmade pastas and slow-cooked sauces that defined her kitchen. That same devotion to craft and tradition now lives at Giulietta's.

Great-great-grandsons Anthony and Collin made repeated trips to Italy in recent years, drawing inspiration from the trattorias of Verona, Bologna, Modena, and Florence, as well as from the classic Italian-American dining rooms of Chicago. The result is a restaurant that honors both worlds: the warmth and authenticity of Italy, and the elegant old-world charm of the great Italian-American table.

Set inside a beautifully restored 1884 Italianate building, Giulietta's features original brick, leather seating, arched doorways, candlelit ambiance, and even a recreated Juliet balcony. Every detail has been considered to evoke the soul of Italian hospitality.

The menu showcases handmade pastas and regional Italian preparations alongside an elevated Italian-American sensibility, rooted in the family's generational connection to Italian cooking tradition.

Giulietta's is located in Lawrenceburg, Indiana. For reservations and more information, visit giuliettasitalian.com or call (812) 505-9612.
